CHARLESTON.

FRIDAY MORNING, MAY 7, 1869.

Calling Out the Militia.

We printed on Monday last a circular signed by a man named Isaac Sanders, giving notice that a mass meeting would be held on May 2, to organize the militia. This circular was posted up at Monck's Corner, on the Northeastern Railroad, and was followed by a second, in which the day of meeting was changed to May 1.

The second circular goes far beyond the first, as it gives not only the purpose for which the meeting was to be held, but also the object for which the militia is to be formed. It is not said that it is done in obedience to an order of Governor Scott, and, except in Abbeville, no such order, direct or implied, is known to have been issued. Sanders, however, may be presismed to have had some reason, good or bad, for the faith that was in him, as he declares that the militia is "to regulate "things generally." The peculiar virtue of this announcement lies in the fact that it may mean anything and everything. The colored people are to take their choice at the bidding of the militis showman, and may, as they please, understand that the new organization is to take the place of the moribund Bureau, and put in their possession the never-to-be-forgotten "forty acres "and a mule;" or that they will be paid so many dollars monthly for wearing a uniform and carrying a rifle of the most improved pattern, that work by them and theirs will be needed never more. Some of the leading militia organizers were asked what was the meaning of the phrase "to "regulate things generally," and the answer was, "that when anything was done "wrong by anybody the company would take them up and examine the matter, and upunish such as they thought deserved it." According to this, the militiamen expect to have more power than is confided to the legislative, judicial and executive departments of the State Government. The State tution of the United States; but the militis company is not restricted in authority, and may, when "anything is done wrong by "anybody," arrest the offender, examine the natter, and punish "such as they think de-"serve it." And doubtless, according to the ideas of Sanders and his mates, any unfortunate white man who objects to the formation of a militia company will be

Strange to say, there still seemed to be ome trouble in bringing the colored people to the scratch. Even the prospect of becoming members of a plenary court, with the privilege of shooting and being shot, failed to excite the expected enthusiasm. Sanders, therefore, threatened the recusants with the penitentiary. When remonstrated with in regard to this and other illegal acts which he had committed, Sanders said-"I AM A RADICAL" This, indeed, is justification enough.

We do not suppose that any member of the present State Government is particularly squeamish, or cares very much whether the negro militiamen do or do not threaten and abuse the white people. They do not reflect that these proceedings are more dangerous to the white Radical than to the colored man, because for the last there is some excuse, while for the first there is none. If the negroes form organizations to regulate things generally -whether with or without the authority of this bastard government, It matters not-the white people will be tempted to do the same. What is right for the one is right for the other. What the one does under tyrannical law of the State, the other will do by authority of the first law of Nature-self-preservation. The negroes, for the most part, have nothing to lose and everything to gain. They are told constantly that Governor Scott is all powerful and all wise, and it will be difficult to hold them in check, if they are once formally enrolled, either "to regulate things "generally" or "for the preservation of the "peace." It is for this reason that we so strenuously object to this whole business of calling out the militia. There is no necessity to say again that the white people will not serve with or near a negro soldiery or rider, was instantly killed while attempting to be ruled by them. That declaration has been re-echoed in every quarter of the State, and need not be repeated here. The ignorance of the negro, and the malice of his advisers, are the elements of danger. If he would take his gun and gay coat and content himself with practicing the "goose "step" or "right shoulder shift," allowing the white people and his own wiser brethren to sow and reap as they pleased, it would not be necessary for us to say one word. But this cannot be. The proceedings at Monck's Corner show what the militiamen expect to do, and it may be summed up in a few words: First, to coerce every colored man into the ranks. Second, to do what they will with the lives and estates of the white people. This is the whole programme as laid down by one of their number, and this it is which compels us to set our faces against this whole militia mockery, which may begin in harmless

General Butler and the Alabama Claims.

In discussing the Alabama claims, it must always be borne in mind that if England was wrong in recognizing the Southern Confederacy, we have the same cause for complaint against France and Spain, and that any of the three could set off against the claim of the United States the oction of the Federal government in acknowledging the South as belligarent. These views are sustained by so extreme a Radical as General Butler, who, in a recent conversation with a New York correspon-

"The thesis of Mr. Sumner's speech, as understand it, is that England committed an 'almost unpardonable sin-at least one to be atoned for only by full payment of all dam-'ages, immediate or consequential—in her too early according to the insurgents belligerent 'rights; in allowing the escape of the Alabama, and in selling arms and munitions of war to the South. Of course, the last legally re-'sulted from the first: for after belligerency is 'accorded by a nation there is no objection to the sale of arms by any neutral nation to the belligerent. We sold arms to Mexico as 'against the French invasion; we supplied mules to the French to transport their luggage trains from Vera Cruz to Mexico. So 'we bought arms of all nations in Europe. So there is nothing in our neutrality laws against our selling arms either to Peru or Chili, and we have been selling them arms in their war against Spain.

"Therefore the gravity of Mr. Sumner's accusation depends upon the propriety of the recognition by England of the rights of bel-Tigerency in the rebels. But we must remember that our complaint in that behalf is as grave and commanding against France and Spain as against England. I am inclined to think Mr. Sumner puts too much stress upon the haste of this recognition as to time, be cause on the 17th of July by formal declaration of war we acknowledged the Confederacy "as belligerent; and in a war which lasted four 'years, whether belligerency was acknowledged on the 17th of May or the 17th of July of the first year, certainly could not be a matter of so grave consequence, if it might be acknowledged at all." It being conceded that England had the aw on her side, what, then, is to be done? General Butler's theory is that she took advantage of technical law to injure a friendly power, being determined to destroy the United States at all hazards, and that this is just as much an injury that requires reparation as though the acts had been done without technical legal justification. But how is the offender to be expected to conpede that he had not the law on his side when in point of fact he had? England may have been unfriendly to the North, but she was no less unfriendly to the South. In refusing to join the Emperor Napoleon in recognizing the Southern Confederacy, her statesmen committed a blunder of which they already repent. This country, North and South, is dissatisfied with England, and England is Jealous of the American Union. Neither the dissatisfaction of the one nor the jealousy of the other, however, will facilitate the settlement of the Alabama claims. Butler himself is not in favor of going to war, though he would have us await an opportunity when England is at Negotiations are futile as long as the demand is that Great Britain shall acknowledge that she was wrong in recognizing the South. The door of diplomacy is closed. War would be the total destruction of the commerce and trade of the country. What have we, then, to do but to wait and reopen the question at a later day upon a basis which shall give this country all to which it is entitled, without attempting to impose upon England conditions which national pride will not allow her for a moment to entertain? THE New York Times learns that General Gonzales, so highly esteemed by all who know him, is among the prisoners banished to the Island of Fernando Po, a few weeks ago, by the Spanish Captain-General of Cuba. We unite in the call of the Times upon the American Government to investigate the matter forthwith, and demand a release of the General if improperly held as a prisoner.
